

We welcome you to join us for the NLN Clinical Focus Group on Wound Care facilitated by
Anna Stewart, MOT, OTR/L, CLT.

Please join Anna in discussing case studies, challenges, and techniques in the wound care setting. All lymphedema therapists of varying settings, geographic location, and discipline are welcome.

We encourage submission of questions or topics for discussion via email at continuingeducation@lymphnet.org

These are not recorded, therefore they are not accessible at a later date.

Anna Stewart is an occupational therapist currently practicing in Southeast Michigan. She has over twenty years experience as a manual therapist. She began her career as a massage therapist working primarily in medical offices. During this time, she was adjunct faculty in the massage program at Baker College. Anna completed her Master of Occupational Therapy in 2011 and has been working in a variety of settings experiencing the fullness of opportunities occupational therapy provides. Her career led her to work with underserved populations which has included rural communities in Kansas and urban areas of Detroit. In 2019, she completed her lymphedema certification course through Norton School of Lymphatic Therapy. Anna has brought her passion for providing care for individuals with lymphedema to now include those with wounds. She has additional training in palliative care and is thoughtful about providing individualistic treatment with a holistic approach.